Tim Wood inquired about the committee's decision to not allow political floats in the JIOW parade. Tracy advised this just came to light about three weeks ago when they learned that there were no bylaws, or rules or established procedures for who was directing the parade forming at the top of the hill. They are in process now of establishing rules for the parade. However, they have not denied anyone to be in the parade. They did not discriminate but simply said no political floats or signs in the parade.

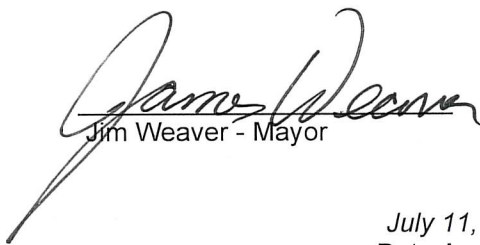

The matter was discussed as far as potential liability for the village since they support JIOW to some extent. The contact information for the solicitor was given to Tracy to discuss any potential concerns that our Solicitor might have. They should have established rules and procedures in place for next year.
